SESSIONAL CO-INSTRUCTOR (0.5FCE)
CHL 3002Y: Teaching Bioethics, Fall/Winter 2022-23 – CUPE 3902 Unit 3

Course CHL3002Y: Teaching Bioethics

This is required course in the Master of Health Sciences (MHSc) in Bioethics program. The MHSc in Bioethics is a professional degree program for health professionals working in health settings. This full-year course seeks to foster skills for teaching bioethics and to enable students to initiate and enhance bioethics education in their professional health setting. The culmination of the course is the development of a teaching curriculum which addresses the ethical issues in each student's professional context. In the course, students will: identify the hidden curriculum in their professional health setting and opportunities for enhanced sensitivity to ethics-related issues; become familiar with principles of adult learning, learning styles, and teaching modalities for engaging in bioethics education; design a curriculum ready for implementation and evaluation that is geared toward addressing bioethical issues in their health care context; and increase their confidence in raising ethical issues for deliberation and in conducting an ethics educational initiative

Estimated course enrolment: 17
